GRAIN ANALYSIS TRAINING NOW ON-LINE

To support the standardisation of training in the UK cereals industry the AIC and the AHDB have been developing training modules to help grain analysts understand, and carry out, the many different tests. Over the past couple of years modules specific to oil seed rape, wheat and barley have been launched and work is on-going to launch pea and bean modules.

There are training courses covering everything from how to take a grain sample in wheat to barley germination.

Although the courses go above and beyond what is required from Red Tractor crops scheme members, they are a great learning tool delivering sound guidance on grain analysis.

In a simple to use format the I-learning tool is hosted on the AHDB website here.
